Decompiling a project to C# Decompiling a project is a more advanced operation. It takes a lot of time and memory. Sometimes we get an exception and our decompiling session is closed. It is not necessary. You can run decompiling a project without restoring its state. This is the most convenient way to decompile a project to C#. From VB Decompiler windows, right-click on the project that you want to decompile and select "Start decompiling project to C#". !alt tag(images/StartDecompiler.png "Start decompiler") After decompiling is completed, you will see a list of decompiled files. !alt tag(images/Decompile-Result.png "Decompiling results") ## Reading C# Code C# code is usually stored in .cs files.
