All of the footage you post to your private YouTube channel will be preserved for your future viewing pleasure. In this informative video demonstration, we show you how to create a private YouTube channel. To begin, download and install the YouTube Studio app in your smartphone. Next, login to your Google account. And from there, all you have to do is select your creation mode and set the privacy settings. Creating a Private Channel Once you have successfully created your private channel, you will be able to upload your videos and your followers will see them. Just go to the upper-right corner of your screen and tap 'Uploads'. And from there, all you have to do is select the video that you want to upload, and click 'Upload'. And because it is private, only you will be able to see your personal videos. How to Delete Your YouTube Channel If you don't want your channel any longer, you can simply delete it by going to your video, and clicking the three dots in the top right-hand corner of your screen.

Then, select 'Channel settings'. Now, scroll down and you will be able to see the option to 'Delete channel'. And once you have made this choice, it will automatically delete your YouTube channel. Conclusion Creating an unlimited private channel is the ideal way to utilize YouTube to its full potential.

SYNCWATCH is an extension for the Chrome browser that enables you to play any streaming video on any device while chatting, sharing and viewing content in a room for free. The room is created by sending a short code to your Facebook, Twitter, Google+ and YouTube accounts. This room is then made publicly available for anyone to join in. When one of your friends enters the room, all they have to do is hit the share button and the link to the video is sent to all the room members.

SYNCWATCH Features:

- Your friends can now view or watch videos with you, as long as you are in the same room.
- No more waiting for 3 minutes to watch a video.
- Your friends can rewind, fast-forward, pause, and play any video you have chosen. - Your friends can view the same video at the same time.

review To be honest, this is all fun and all, but the one thing that gets on my nerves is that it takes me time and effort to click different tabs to open up videos in different browsers and then I have to tab back to my main browser to play videos in Chrome. Also what if I pause the video and exit the site? Then I would have to click the tab back to the site and back to the video. This is irritating. One thing I can see is that for the browser in question, it has to add a lot of unnecessary code to the browser in order to support this addon. So if you wanted to add this to another browser that doesn't support it, like Internet Explorer, you might have a problem. Basically, it doesn't seem to work that well. I was hoping for a simpler way to watch videos from different sites like YouTube, Facebook and DailyMotion all at the same time. This extension did not work at all on YouTube even with YouTube telling me they supported SyncWatch. For me the biggest problem with the extension was that if you were in a room and wanted to watch something, and you had to share the link with your friends before they could join you, it just didn't work. You couldn't rewind or skip forwards in the video. I tried watching a trailer of the movie 'The Butler' with friends and I was kinda lucky. With that movie, the trailer doesn't have a lot of content so I was able to watch it from the start to the end without any problems. With this addon, that isn't the case at all. There are a lot of video sites that support SyncWatch, which is a good thing. The only thing that disappointed me is that when you play a video you have to exit and reopen the video, and the tab disappears. Also,

What's New in the SyncWatch?

SyncWatch is an extension of SyncPlay that was created to make watching online videos much easier. It's a fairly simple and easy to use extension, so you will definitely love using it. Why you should use this extension to watch online videos SyncWatch is compatible with a number of different video sharing websites. It can even support you as you watch videos on sites such as YouTube and Vimeo. It also has some built in features that can help you. First of all, you won't have to worry about all of you pausing at the same time and you won't have to count down to the moment when the video will start playing. The developers have also made the extension easy to use. You can simply click on the Share video button and a link will be shared with everyone in the room. You can also decide on what content to share and turn that content into a private video that is only available for everyone to view. It can be a video that you have created or you can use any of your shared videos that you would like to watch. For even more benefits, there are a number of other available features like the ability to play video or control the volume directly from the timeline of your content. There is also an option to have sound effects play when you pause the video, and you also have the ability to mute the audio from the timeline as well. That said, there are still a few things that could be improved, including issues with video syncing. If you and your friends are using a website that offers a different video player, the resulting video might be out of sync. You may also have trouble dealing with the video player on the website directly, such as a website only offering a Flash video player. If that happens and you're using a Chrome web browser, you should always use this extension to watch video content together. SyncWatch
