During FIFA 20, we introduced FIFA Ultimate Team and our Live Events Mini-Masters. Now, we continue to deliver new ways to compete in the live football season with the creation of the Live Leagues system. "The Live Leagues concept, with its spontaneous and irregular structure, allows us to offer unique experiences to our fans," said Hannah Mouncey, producer. "Whether they're looking to test out their skills in a side-by-side match with their friends or hone their skills against a local rival, the Live Leagues concept offers players a chance to participate in football matches that will never have been played before." We introduced 12 new Live Leagues during FIFA 20. With the introduction of the Live Leagues system, there will be twice as many Live Leagues this year, with 20 new Live Leagues in total. After you have earned your place in a division, you will be placed in one of four leagues — Continental Leagues, Confirmed Division Leagues, Live Leagues and the FIFA Ultimate Team League — to form a unique Live League. Each league will feature an invitation-only distribution phase, where players compete against their friends' friends only. Each week, the four leagues in each of the 10 Confirmed Division Leagues will compete head-to-head, with the outcome of that match determining which two teams will be placed in the next round of play in the final Confirmed Division League. Play will start on Saturday, March 23 and culminate with the Live

Leagues 10 Finals - the conclusion of the 10 Confirmed Division Leagues — on Sunday, April 20. Those looking to take their football skills to a higher level can participate in the FIFA Ultimate Team League, an invitation-only league available only to those holding Ultimate Team Leaderboard slots of 1,000 or higher. Players will earn points based on the standard FIFA Player Ratings system, but those who commit to a week of a given league will earn bonus points to help them qualify for the Live Leagues Finals - the culmination of the entire Live Leagues season. Those who score more points than their opponents at the conclusion of the Live Leagues season will have the opportunity to ascend through the ranks of their Division and become the absolute favourite in their respective Division. The highest-scoring player in any Division will receive a trueFIFA.com Live League Player of the Week trophy, plus a $
