The following step is to transfer the new iRISHPSM to the new installation of the printer. Once your printer is done, you can restore the iRISHPSM to its original state. You can then print out the warranty document on the iRISHPSM for future customer support by a representative. By the way, the iRISHPSM has just introduced a new feature. If you have an issue with your warranty, your representative at the iRISHPSM will now be able to access your printer and see if you are eligible for a free service. This is an iRISHPSM exclusive feature, but I bet it will be appreciated. About The iRISHPSM is the world's first wireless, all-in-one printer, scanner, copier, router, hub, and server with Wi-Fi capabilities, LTE and 4G (SMA) support, and the ability to send faxes, print documents, scan documents, and share documents wirelessly.[REBINDING AND RECONFIGURATION OF AN ENZYMATIC ACTIVITY AND ESTABLISHMENT OF A SYSTEM FOR STERILE DEMOLITION OF THE SPINE]. Oligo(ethylene glycol)-spacer-TBMAC (tetrakis(2,4-bis(carboxymethoxymethyl)-1,3-dioxolane)methane) and OEGMA (oligo(ethylene glycol) monomethyl ether), the most used protecting and spacing monomers in the end-linking of hydrophilic linear polymeric diblock copolymers into the enzyme capsules, have been used in the present study for the rebinding of a lysozyme. These polymers showed limited functionality and the rebinding of enzyme was not stable due to the instability of the resulting conjugate. A stable conjugate was obtained by first modifying the surface of the enzyme and then rebinding it using the reactive ethylene glycol units of OEGMA. The proteolytic activity of the obtained conjugate was assessed on synthetic peptides, and a decrease of the hydrolysis rate of the highly substrate-sensitive peptide was observed in the presence of the conjugate. The activity of the conjugate for the hydrolysis of protein substrates was determined in the concentration range 1×10^{-4} to 10

Field of the Invention The present invention is related to lithographic printing and, more particularly, to an improved apparatus and method for improving the quality of the print image that is formed on a substrate or receiver sheet in lithographic printing. 2. Background In lithographic printing, a printing plate that has hydrophobic and hydrophilic areas is mounted on a plate cylinder. A lithographic printing inking is applied to the surface of the plate that is capable of receiving an image. The lithographic printing plate may be a lithographic plate that is generally formed of a hydrophobic substrate that has been treated to have water receptive areas that are ink receptive. The hydrophobic substrate may be a metal such as aluminum or copper or it may be formed of a plastic or polymer material. The hydrophilic areas of the lithographic plate are generally prepared by overcoating the hydrophobic substrate with a layer of a material that is water receptive. The printed image is generated by the removal of the hydrophobic areas of the lithographic plate that are not coated with the inking agent. The removal of the areas of the lithographic plate that have not been coated with ink is accomplished by passing the ink-coated lithographic plate cylinder over a dampening roller and then over a rubber-covered ink-receptive printing cylinder. The inking roller transfers ink from the ink rollers to the surface of the plate cylinder via the dampening roller. The print cylinder transfers
