In the past, those same coaches would be limited in their recruiting to those schools with several high-major programs. Their desire to work with underclassmen earned them a reputation for "wishing on a star" as the cream of the crop of players sought out the classic NBA path. But that is changing. Those days are gone. Now there is a new school of coaches who are recruiting recruits who have no intention of leaving college early, due to the recent litany of shenanigans of NBA scouts. This new school of coaches is comprised
